THE GRAND OLD MAN OF CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

A PERSONAL TALK WITH MASARYK.

OUTSPOKEN VIEWS ON PRESENT WORLD PROBLEMS.

BY SIR EVELYN WRENCH

It is given to few nation-builders to see their creations achieving success, yet such has been the fate of Thomas Masaryk the son of a coachman in the old Austria-Hungarian Monarchy. He started life as a blacksmith, and is to-day ruler of the prosperous Czechoslovakian Republic and the undisputed "father of his country."

A talk with Mr. Masaryk is a never-to-be-forgotten experience. When you look into those clear, thoughtful eyes and listen to him in that gently modulated voice, speaking in excellent English, weighing every word before he utters it, you realise that you are in the presence of one of the master minds of the world.

AMAZING VITALITY.

Mr. Masaryk's amazing vitality first strikes you. How at the age of 62 has he retained all the energy of a man of 40? Many men of 40 have not half his vitality. I asked him how he kept fit.

The President smiled, and said he indulged in two forms of exercises; he does "physical jerks" for a quarter of an hour every morning when he gets up, followed by a cold bath and friction, and he also has a daily ride. I asked Mr. Masaryk if he ever played golf, and he smilingly replied that, like the late M. Briand, he had had one game! "Never again. After all, golf is just walking, and I can get all the walking I want without playing golf."

When you are talking to the President you forget that he was born in 1850. In no way does he give you the impression of being an old man, this being no doubt largely due to the active life that he has led; for nation-builders like Mr. Masaryk have no time to grow old.

I asked the President to give me his views on the Danube Plan, of which we are hearing so much in the papers at the present time. He explained to me that Czechoslovakia was very anxious to live on friendly terms with her neighbours, and first of all to make sensible economic treaties with the smaller nations of the Danube basin. Mr. Masaryk was opposed to any one of the Great Powers coming into proposed economic arrangement until the small Powers had come to some agreement among themselves first.

BRITAIN'S PROBLEMS.

Turning to British problems, the President said that there is no doubt in his mind that Great Britain will soon be through its economic crisis. He added:

"You spent more than you need have done on your share in the war. You spent relatively more than Germany and France. You and America paid vast sums to your soldiers; your organisation having been largely on a voluntary basis, and your armed forces cost you much more per head than did the armies of Germany, France, and the other Continental nations."

"These vast sums that the Anglo-Saxon nations poured out were especially great, and are a great factor in your present economic plight."

"The second factor, which I think is sometimes overlooked, is that the small nations, including the Balkans, and such nations as Russia and the people of the East, have now developed a tendency to become industrially independent. That is a tendency which nothing you can do will alter. All nations are trying to become self-sufficient."

"You ask me what is going to be the result of this economic nationalism."

"I hope that some day, and the sooner the better, there will be a rational division of economic labour, and that the leading industrialists in each nation, and the representatives of the nations, will meet together and say something as follows: 'We will sell those articles which we have special facilities for producing, and which you do not produce. In other words, there will be a World Economic Round Table, when we shall more or less rationalise world trade.

"Just as in the past there has been rationalisation internally within certain countries, I hope that ultimately we shall see world economic co-operation—that is to say, a systematic division of national labour. It is the economic problem that will largely occupy our nations in the near future."

WORLD CO-OPERATION.

"There can be no permanent prosperity in the world if all nations just go on raising their tariffs," said Mr. Masaryk. "We shall end up where we started, and the result will be that we shall pay more for living. You can achieve nothing lasting for the common good by merely building up tariffs. I believe in world co-operation, and sooner or later it must come. If you believe in humanity, you must believe that in the long run sensible international institutions must triumph."

Turning to the subject of India, I asked President Masaryk what he thought about Asia, and he said, frankly:

"I do not know enough about Asia to be able to form a clear view of the situation, but I am quite sure that just as you have adapted yourself to the changing situation in Africa and Egypt and elsewhere, when the time comes you will adapt your policy to the growing desires of the people of Asia to control their own destiny."

I asked President Masaryk what is the chief feature of the Czechoslovak foreign policy. He said that France and Germany should come together. Europe cannot exist as it may have done before the war with two groups of opposing nations.

"What we need is a federal system for Europe, and I think, therefore, that the only lasting basis for European peace is Franco-German co-operation with the assistance of Great Britain and Italy."

"I am sure that one of the reasons for European unrest at present is that the 40,000,000 of French people do fear the 80,000,000 of Germans. If there could be a Franco-British-German co-operation in Europe, all those dreams which we have in view, such as a Pan-European, would one day be realised. I believe and hope that educated nations like France, Germany, Great Britain, and Italy will soon realise that it is stupid to quarrel and that they must co-operate. World co-operation is a cause very dear to my heart."

I asked Mr. Masaryk what was his chief recreation, and he said reading English and American novels.

"There is nothing I enjoy more, they give me such a good survey of current English and American thought; in fact, I think I learn more history by novel-reading than in any other way."

"A novel is the mirror of contemporary life. If you know how to read novels you can derive enormous benefit from them, and I am especially impressed with your British and American women authors. They are both able and daring. I do not think we have as large a proportion of women authors compared to the total number of writers on the Continent."

ENGLISH CHARACTER.

"What do you like best about Great Britain?" I asked Mr. Masaryk.

"I like the English character," he said. "You have been lucky to have been separated by the sea from the Continent of Europe, and from many of the problems which have agitated the Continental nations in the past."

"Your peculiar position has given you continuity in your institutions and stability. From the time of the Reformation you have had liberal education. You have not suffered from the fear complex, as have many nations of the Continent. The Continental nations have always had to be on the qui vive, while you have grown up in an atmosphere of freedom in which your English character has developed."

ABSENTEES FROM COUNTY CRICKET.

THE NEW BOWLING PROBLEM FOR LANCASHIRE.

No side in the County Cricket Championship is liable to suffer more from the pains of reconstruction this summer than Lancashire, and the most acute pain relates to the attack.

Edgar Macdonald, the fast bowler, who played havoc with our men 11 years ago in company with Jack Gregory, has left the county after a long term of service; the other departing stalwart, so different in pace from that of the famous Australian, is Richard Tyldesley, Dickie, who has been a mainstay of the county for a long time.

In bulk and gentility Tyldesley restored to memory the spacious days of Grace, although minus the flowing beard of the doctor, and many good judges in Lancashire consider that he has gone out of first-class cricket much too early for the good estate of Lancashire. It is as if Freeman should part company with Kent.

A Coaching Sequel.

An important sequel to the loss of Macdonald and Tyldesley is the recent appointment of Sidney Barnes to share with Harry Makepeace the duties of coaching.

The colts at Old Trafford are not perhaps advertised in the same magnificent way as in Yorkshire; but if the material is there, Barnes, renewing an old acquaintance with Lancashire, is undeniably the man to sort it out. It is the best move that Lancashire have made for many a long day.

The two coaches seek bowlers who can help Sibley and Hopwood. Each man is useful, but neither can be described as a match-winning bowler. Litchford was tried towards the end of last season, but he, too, answers to the medium type, and a bowler of pace is urgently needed to support Hodgson, the Sower forward.

Plenty of Good Batting.

With that problem solved, Peter Eckersley would suffer no more anxiety, for the captain has plenty of good batting. Ernest Tyldesley still remains the "Hobbs of Lancashire," and we are all glad to hear that Frank Watson, who takes a benefit this year, has recovered from last year's illness.

In addition to Iddon, Hopwood and Horrocks (the Lancashire-born man who returned from Australia last year), there is Paynter a left-arm batsman chosen by England in 1931 to play against New Zealand.

There was something of the battle and the breeze of Old Hill about Teddy Paynter's work last season and, like Oliver Twist, we are asking for more.

atmosphere of freedom in which your English character has developed."

I asked the President for his views on the necessity of having an auxiliary international language. His answer was short and to the point. He said: "We have already got a world language in English. I would certainly vote for its adoption."

ECONOMICS FIRST.

As I rose to go, I asked Mr. Masaryk what he thought was the most useful thing Great Britain could do to help Europe at this juncture. With a twinkle in his eyes he replied: "Help us to be sensible."

"I have returned from my visit to Central Europe with two outstanding impressions. First, that Great Britain occupies a special niche in the European hegemony which no other nation can fill. We are trusted, and all the small States in the Danube area hope that Great Britain will use her influence to help Europe out of its present economic distress."

Secondly, that even in countries with such a different political outlook as Hungary and Czechoslovakia, people are talking economics rather than politics today."

An ever-widening group of people in each country thinks that the best hope for Europe in the future is close economic co-operation. Let the Daily Telegraph.

THRILL FOR 300
CHILDREN.MARCHED OUT OF A
BLAZING SCHOOL.TWO CLASSROOMS WRECKED
BY FIERCE FIRE.

Three hundred children at Desborough school, High Wycombe, had the thrill of their young lives. When fire broke out in the roof, spread swiftly, and destroyed two classrooms.

There was no panic, though the fire was burning fiercely before the children could be got out. The alarm was given by a boy who saw smoke around the walls.

In the two rooms that were destroyed 90 children were at their desks, but they, with the remaining 210, were led from the school with complete orderliness.

The fire brigade were summoned, and the outbreak was soon got under; the greater part of the school being saved.

P. C. Matthews, who was close at hand and helped to marshal the children out, said later:

"The efficiency both of teachers and children was remarkable, and was a proof of the sound fire drill they have received."

LONGER-LIVED BULLDOGS.

SMALLER HEARTS.

It used to be said of bulldogs that the only objection to them was that they died young. It seems that the reason for this was because their hearts were too big for their bodies.

But you might have seen one or two entitled to the respect accorded to greybeards if you had visited the Bulldog Club's championship show at the Drill Hall, Handel-street, St. Pancras.

"Bulldogs used to live about five years," said Mr. T. Roger Boulton, secretary of the club, to a reporter, "but you will find many nowadays ten years old or older."

"They are living longer because their hearts are getting smaller."

"Their hearts used to be too big for them, and they would drop down dead, but by judicious breeding it has been possible to develop strains with smaller hearts."

WOMEN'S TURF
LUCK HOLDS.

ANOTHER BIG TRIUMPH.

London, 22 April.—The remarkable run of success which women owners have had on the Turf this season was continued at Epsom when Mrs. C. Jones' Clogheen, a 20 to 1 outsider, won the City and Suburban, one of the most important of the great spring handicaps.

The race was run in a downpour of rain driven into the teeth of the field by a strong wind, and the ground was so heavy that when the jockeys dismounted they were more like niggers than white men from the mud thrown up by the horses as they galloped down the straight.

The high percentage of wins scored by women owners is an outstanding feature of this flat-racing season. Women owners are in a small minority compared with the men, and few of them, unlike Miss Dorothy Paget, whose Bessenthwaite won the Wonsuch Stakes on Tuesday, are wealthy.

Bookmaker's Wife.

Mrs. Jones is the wife of a Newport, Monmouthshire, bookmaker.

She bought Clogheen with a horse called East of the Earth at the Newmarket December sales for 800 guineas. Both animals have proved profitable for Salt of the Earth, won a hurdle race at Cardiff on Easter Monday.

Another woman owner, Mrs. Fairfax, won the Castle Selling Plate at Pontefract yesterday with Captain King.

Miss Paget's Bessenthwaite has engagements at Ascot and Goodwood.

Seventeen women owners have horses entered in the Derby. The best-known of their horses is the Dower Lady Nunburnholme, Epsom Downs, which won the Oranville Stakes at Newmarket last week.

"SECRETS OF A SECRETARY."AN ENGLISH STAR'S WARDROBE

A trade notice states:—

To challenge the sartorial prestige of William Powell, Clive Brook, and the others comes George Metaxa, newest Paramount talkie find, fresh from London with one of the most extensive wardrobes ever to be seen in New York where he made his talkie debut in "Secrets of a Secretary" which comes to the King's on Wednesday next.

Metaxa enjoys the reputation of being one of the "best-dressed men in England." And that, we might as well admit, means one of the best-dressed men in the world.

Metaxa for the past several years has been the idol of the British musical comedy stage. One of his most recent engagements there was opposite Peggy Wood in the glorious success, "Bitter Sweet."

It was while dachshing about dear old Piccadilly Circus and Bond Street that he took the notion to build up his wardrobe into something of gargantuan proportions.

When he arrived in New York to play his first American talkie role opposite Claudette Colbert in "Secrets of a Secretary," he brought the following items of masculine attire:—

Forty-six suits of clothes, including three dinner jackets and three full dress suits; 10 overcoats; 100 shirts; 100 pairs of socks; 80 ties; 8 hats; 24 pairs of shoes; 24 pajamas and 12 dressing gowns.

His tailor in London has 12 sets of key patterns on file by means of which Metaxa orders his clothes without bothering about fittings.

In "Secrets of a Secretary" he plays the role of a South American fortune hunter who marries Miss Colbert, a wealthy New York society girl, for her money. When her father dies and she loses the family fortune, he deserts her and makes love to the younger daughter of the family to whom Claudette has been forced to become a social secretary.

NOTED TENOR.

Lomello da Silva, the world-famous Portuguese tenor, as the Duke of Mantua in "Rigoletto." He will give a concert on Thursday night in the Rose Room, Peninsula Hotel.

sense about his efforts not to become a mere prince-consort, and presumably you are supposed to feel sorry for him. Reginald Denny made up with slanting criminal eyes—struggles with a part that hardly any actor could have made either convincing or sympathetic. There is, by the way a delightful little piece of acting by a professor of music, whom Jeanette engages to teach the loutish hero to sing.

In spite of the bad directing of Hamilton MacFadden and the stupid story (to say no worse of it) the acting of Jeanette, her friends, carry the performance through, and though it peters out where it began at least it escapes any suggestion of dullness.

"PRIVATE LIVES."

AT THE QUEEN'S THEATRE.

"Private Lives" is based on Noel Coward's stage play, and is another triumph for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's.

As Amanda, the young wife who divorces her husband to marry another, Norma Shearer who is always good in this type of part, is seen at her best. She has a good singing voice; and this is the first time she has used it in making a film. She and Robert Montgomery, as her ex-husband participate in rather unusual duet, entitled "Someday I'll find you," specially composed by Noel Coward for the stage production. Montgomery whistles the tune while Norma accompanies him singing.

They are ably supported by Una Merkel and Reginald Denny, who do much towards making the play a success.

The action is mainly taken up by the squabbles between the respective husbands and wives, and there are some amusing scenes in which Norma Shearer and Montgomery are seen going for each other like wild cats, wrestling with each other, and smashing all the furniture in the room. The acting and directing is excellent, from start to finish.

This is the fourth film in which Norma Shearer, and Montgomery have appeared together, and it makes still another success for this pair.

The film is an example of Sidney Franklin's discriminating direction, and is a picture which should not be missed—it is now showing at the Queen's Theatre.

FINE ACTING
BY JEANETTE
MACDONALD."OH, FOR A MAN" AT THE KING'S.

Jeanette MacDonald is a very charming personality, and she is particularly good at playing the beautiful woman being silly. She does it so well in "Oh, For a Man" that last night at the King's Theatre she had a staid Hong Kong audience letting itself go with laughter and the wags shouting the kind of encouraging criticisms you would expect had she been there in the flesh. Jeanette has, also, a good light opera voice, and her song in an Italian garden was most pleasing, but it was hardly fair to put her up against the music of Wagner, the most exacting of all composers to his interpreters. However, that was merely a directing blunder.

As a foil to her caprice and her tantrums, is her dresser, cool and unperturbed, a beautiful piece of acting by a lady whose name is not given on the programme.

But what a pity that Jeanette should be wasted on a film like "Oh, For a Man!" The story is of a popular prima donna who completely falls for a big handsome burglar, and duly marries him. The burglar is no gallant Romeo but a mean-minded gangster from the gutter who tries to be the hero. There is a lot of film non-sense. (Continued on previous column.)

FACT.

Miss Helen Twelvetroes.

An interesting event is expected in the autumn in the family of Miss Helen Twelvetroes, the film star, and her husband, Mr. Frank Woody. Miss Twelvetroes played leading parts in "An American Tragedy," "The Grand Parade" and other successes.

Prince Edward Theatre.

"Several alterations will be made at the Prince Edward Theatre," London "for the John Murray Anderson revue. For instance, an apron-stage will be introduced; with the result, of course, that the barrier between the audience and the performers will be lessened, an important point when a revue is produced in a large theatre.

"The spectacular side of a show can, of course, look after itself, but comedy scenes are apt to be difficult with a huge auditorium and a mass of space between the footlights and the first row of stalls."

George Graves' Advice.

It was George Graves who, giving advice as to how to get a job across in a certain theatre, even larger than the Prince Edward, declared that the only thing to do is to "shut your eyes and bark into the chasm."

Dion Titherage is writing some special scenes for Violet Loraine for the Prince Edward revue, in which the leading comedian will be Joe Cook, an American who is said to be extremely diverting.

A Director of Hits.

"Although Lowell Sherman has directed but three pictures, they are all distinct hits! Why?" This question was asked of Charles Kerr, Sherman's assistant-director, who is in a position to know the methods of his chief. Kerr indicated a group packed around Lowell Sherman standing in the center of a luxurious Oriental rug in the king's office during the filming of Radio Pictures' "The Royal Bed" appearing soon at the Queen's Theatre.

"The huddle process!" he said.

An inspection of the group revealed not only cameramen and sound technicians, but "grips," electricians, wardrobe men, makeup artists, script girls and department heads, employed on the set, listening intently to the actor-director explain, not only the mechanics of the scene, but its story motif as well.

"He always does that," says Kerr, "and everyone has an opportunity to offer suggestions before even the rehearsals. And their suggestions are not confined to their own particular work, either!"

Hollywood Chips.

Marlene Dietrich starred in her very first American-made film—Richard Arlen started his career in the motion picture business as a film delivery boy. Paul Lukas was born on a railroad train as it was speeding toward Budapest. Dorothy Arzner is the only woman director under contract in Hollywood. Irving Pichel's contract with Paramount stipulates that he is to act, write or direct.

Carole Lombard.

Carole Lombard was a student at Los Angeles high school for three years? Her grandfather was a director of the company that laid the first transatlantic cable? She has two athletic medals won at high school—for sprinting and broad jumping? She so much prefers blondes that if she were a brunette she would take the necessary steps to change herself?

The Luncheon Hour.

Screen stars are granted an hour's respite from the camera and gleaming lights on the set every day for lunch.

What do the players do during the hour besides eat? Edmund Lowe and Claudette Colbert, who are co-featured in "Sensation," are two lunch-hour "sleepers." Having the principal roles, they work the hardest and the little "siesta" of less than a half hour refreshes them for the gruelling afternoon grind of film-making. Nancy Carroll lies on a couch and halfdreams about things and places which are very remote and distant from the confines of a motion picture studio. Tallulah Bankhead likes to be surrounded with a gay, wise-cracking crowd at lunch. The hour is spent in pleasant repartee and laughter.

THE WOMEN OF CHINA.

"FINEST AND WISEST CHARACTERS IN THE WORLD."

A NOVELIST'S TRIBUTE.

To many students of China it seems that the Chinese women have stronger characters than their menfolk, they appear more self-sacrificing, more determined, and, at the same time, more practical. According to Mrs. Pearl S. Buck, author of "The Good Earth," which has been widely acclaimed in China as the best novel ever written by a foreigner about Chinese life, the reason for this is to be found in the old family system which favoured in all sorts of ways the son at the expense of the daughter.

Boys Are Spoilt.

From birth onward, Mrs. Buck pointed out in a lecture on "Women in China to-day," the Chinese boy is indulged by his parents to such a degree that his character is permanently ruined. It may take him all his life to learn the self-control which he should have been taught in childhood. More often than not he goes through life mentally and morally crippled, never achieving those things for which his natural talents fit him, simply because he cannot make himself work, or because he cannot deny himself some self-indulgence. The Chinese girl, on the other hand, learns self-sacrifice, service, and greatest lesson of all, she is taught to accept and make the best of her life. What has hampered the development of the one has helped the other, and Mrs. Buck said in her lecture that she had found among old-fashioned Chinese women of every class some of the finest, and strongest characters in the world. Usually, too, she has found that Chinese women have attained this wisdom much earlier in life than do Western girls, who have the same up-bringing as their brothers and share in what ever indulgence may be going.

Feminine Superiority.

Speaking from close observation of Chinese students attending the universities of Nanking, Mrs. Buck declared that the tradition of feminine moral superiority persisted among the young people of to-day. She had time to the conclusion, she said, that the girls were more painstaking, more determined, and more appreciative than their brother students. In student political activities the girls were the more self-sacrificing and the more thorough in carrying out a programme, while they were also less emotional and more practical. They had qualities of prudence and honesty which often led them to question the wisdom of some movement which they subsequently refused outright to join, whereas the young men were afraid, not to conform for fear of ridicule or because they might bedebbed unpatriotic. In hospitals the women were the best patients, the most controlled and enduring of pain, and in humble homes this was also true. It was upon women that the brunt of life fell in China, and here was often the best and most practical head in the family, even if not the most learned.

Concubinage.

Discussing the concubinage system, Mrs. Buck said that his disregard of the most elemental law had been a source of untold bitterness and disunity in Chinese family life. China's women were ready for monogamy, but her men were not, and one of the problems of the country was to supply the men with that training in the highest ideals of married life which was needed to break down the influence of centuries of accepted and sanctioned polygamy. There was need for unity among women in China, and for a deep sex loyalty which would make it disloyal for a younger unattached woman to take advantage of a wife. Here, also, was scope for mothers to help the women of future generations by instilling into their sons the ideas which would counteract the polygamous instincts of the past.

PRINCE OF WALES' FRIENDS.

IN HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS' CONFIDENCE.

SMALL, INTIMATE CIRCLE.

In a plainly furnished study, almost empty save for one big desk and two armchairs, there are two young men, one fair and the other dark.

The fair-haired man—he is the Prince of Wales—is pacing up and down, talking in rapid staccato phrases, emphasising his points with quick, decided gestures, while the other, his closest and most intimate friend, Lord Ednam, son and heir to the Earl of Dudley, sits listening, occasionally interrupting with a word or two of shrewd comment.

It is a scene you might see any day, were you privileged to go "behind the scenes" at York House, at whose old, red, weather-beaten walls so many visitors gaze every day.

The Prince to-day values Lord Ednam's advice more perhaps than that of any one else, and when he is busy composing one of his big industrial or commercial speeches it is to Lord Ednam that he turns for guidance, whether some phrase will please a particular audience of business men, whether this point or that should be stressed or not.

Lord Ednam has had many tragedies in his life. His mother was drowned, his seven-year-old son was killed on Chelsea Embankment, and his wife, the beautiful daughter of the Duke of Sutherland, was burned to death in the Meopham air disaster in 1930.

It was this last tragedy which brought the Prince and Lord Ednam, who had for many years been great friends, even closer together, for the Prince, feeling that his grief-stricken friend should have his mind distracted, asked him to accompany him on his great tour of South America.

Throughout that tour, and ever since, the two have been constant companions. Perhaps one reason for their friendship lies in their mutual interests, for Lord Ednam is a serious-minded young man who devotes much of his time to the study of those problems of trade and international commerce in which the Prince is so keenly interested.

He is no easy friend, this young man with the world-famous smile and the persuasive personality that has earned him the title of the "Royal Commercial Traveller."

He is so full of life and energy that his moods change as rapidly as the April sky, and he does not suffer fools gladly.

His Eagerness.

That revealing mannerism—almost as well-known as his smile—of fidgeting his tie, or playing with the buttons of his coat while he is making a speech, is not so much a nervous affection as an outward sign of his eagerness and impatience to "get on with the job," as he puts it himself.

Consequently those in the immediate royal circle have to possess quick brains and nimble wits, and the ability to adjust themselves to the passing mood.

Perhaps the man who knows the Prince best of all is Brig-General Gerald Trotter—"G," as he is known to every one at Court.

He has been with the Prince since 1919 as Groom-in-Waiting and equerry, and his debonair soldierly figure, with one sleeve pinned across the breast of his coat—he lost an arm when he won the D.S.O. in the South African War—is one of the most familiar sights of St. James.

"He is my best and oldest friend," said the Prince once, when, in the wilds of Africa, General Trotter lay ill with a heart attack. The attack had been developing for some time, but "G." would not give in, and accompanied the Prince on a hunting trip, only to be taken seriously ill miles from civilisation and doctors.

"If anything happens to him, I'll never forgive myself," said the Prince, and himself nursed the sick man all through the night and on board ship down the Nile to the nearest medical post.

Adventurous Spirit.

Something of the gay adventurous spirit that endeared d'Artagnan to Louis XIV. links General Trotter to the Prince's affection. There is no one he is fonder of than this grey-haired, grey-moustached man with the quiet humorous eyes, and the unmistakable military walk of the ex-Guardsman, who always refers to the Prince quite simply as "my master."

Of all the men who know the Prince on the easy, intimate terms of the hunting field, there is perhaps only one to-day who can properly be called a friend of his Royal Highness.

He is Major Edward Dudley Metcalfe, M.C., known for some entirely mysterious reason, as "Fruity" Metcalfe to nearly every hunting and riding man in England.

A first-class horseman, fearless to hounds, and expert in their polo-field, he is an outstanding example of the English sportsman, and it is to the sport-loving side of the Prince's nature that he makes his appeal.

They are fellow-members of the Bath Club, where they are often to be seen together in the gymnasium or on the squash courts.

They are old friends, for up to his marriage in 1925 to Lady Alexandra, the lovely daughter of the late Lord Curzon, "Fruity" Metcalfe acted as equerry to the Prince. Twelve years ago, when the Prince was starting to lay the foundations of the great personal knowledge he has to-day of the Empire he may one day be called upon to rule, Major Metcalfe, himself only a few years older than the Prince, was one of those who helped to guide his quest. Major Metcalfe nowadays is tremendously busy in the advertising profession.

Four years ago a dozen young men in London could call themselves the Prince's friends. They were seen "everywhere" together. Their names were on everybody's lips.

"Babe."

Perhaps it is significant that one of the most frequent visitors to York House is Lord Derby, that great Englishman who is at the same time a lover of sport and one of the foremost authorities on international relationships in Europe.

Sir Abe Bailey, the South African magnate, is also often an informal caller on the Prince, but they discuss other things than racing, for that is one of the few sports that hold no interest for his Royal Highness.

No account of the Prince's friends could close without mention of Princes George, his youngest brother, and one of his closest comrades.

"Babe" the Prince of Wales calls Princes George.

They are alike in temperament and tastes, and they share many interests in common, so that the bachelor menage at York House, where Princes George has now taken up permanent quarters, is a very happy one.

In their "off-duty" moments, the two Princes will sit in the big cosy armchairs of their library, talking cars and aeroplanes—they are both keen drivers, and learned their piloting together—and a host of other subjects.

The Prince is a difficult friend. He is a faithful and loyal one as well.

Ask "Babe" or "G."

GANGSTERS' RESCUE PLOT.

FOILED BY POLICE RUSE.

A report that two London gangs had arrived in Portsmouth with the intention of attempting to rescue two men who had been remanded in connection with a £25,000 robbery from a bank official led to unusual police precautions.

To avoid the possibility of the motor-van in which prisoners are usually transferred from Portsmouth to Winchester Gaol being ambushed by the gangsters on its 30-mile journey, the police sent the two prisoners by train.

They also resorted to a ruse to take the men to the railway station. A Black March was drawn up outside the Guildhall and was surrounded by a police guard.

Armed Escort.

While several hundred people were waiting to see the prisoners, detectives smuggled the two men out of another door, and walked them to the railway station unobserved.

Each prisoner was handcuffed to a plain clothes officer, and armed detectives escorted the party to the train and on the rest of the journey.

ARCHITECT WITH ONE EYE.

DESIGNS "GLASS HOUSE" H.Q. FOR HIS PROFESSION.

Mr. G. Grey Wornum, a London architect who lost an eye during the war, has won the competition for the plans for the new headquarters of the Royal Institute of British Architects, at the corner of Portland-place and Weymouth-street, W.

In view of the nature of the building there was very keen rivalry, and a number of prominent architects were among the 270 or so who sent in plans.

Mr. Wornum said to a pressman, that a feature of the building would be extensive use of glass partitions, decorated with elaborate grilles of carved wood and ornamental metal, instead of interior walls. He stated:

"You will be able to see right through the building on nearly all the floors. This will make the rooms and halls far lighter. I have tried to compromise between the traditional and the modern."

"The building is to be of Portland stone and, includes a banquet hall for 400 people, a meeting room for 400, and the largest architectural library in the world."

When Mr. Wornum was asked if only one eye interfered with his work, he replied: "It is perhaps a little hindrance in judging distances, and"—this with a laugh—"if you get a fly in it then you are done for!"

THE ROYAL EMPIRE SOCIETY.

Sir Henry Pollock K.C. forwards in the following message received by him from the headquarters in London of the Royal Empire Society.

"The Chairman and Council send greetings on Empire Day and an affirmation of their belief that, granted faith and patience, the prevailing economic depression may lead through the Ottawa Economic Conference to the re-establishment of British prosperity on a new and firmer basis of mutual help within the Empire."—Yours truly, (sd.) George Pilcher, SECRETARY, Northumberland Avenue, London, W.C. 2.

SEASON TICKET'S LAST RACE.

CRACK AUSTRALIAN PONY FIGURES IN NASTY
SPILL: DESTROYED ON THE COURSE.

MR. FROST'S PHENOMENAL SUCCESS ON SATURDAY.

[By "MORNING DEW."]

Season Ticket, one of the best Australian ponies to race in the Colony and holder of four records, figured in a sensational accident at the Race Course on Saturday, as a result of which the pony broke his fetlock joint and was in such agony that it had to be destroyed on the course.

The pony had never been unplaced during the six months that it had raced here. He had won on numerous occasions and was one of the gamiest ponies on the course. It is reported that the pony was under negotiations to be sold for $10,000 to a Chinese buyer in the Straits.

The accident to Season Ticket overshadowed all other happenings of the day and was the main topic of conversation among race-goers. Mr. Leo Frost rode seven winners during the afternoon out of eight appearances on the course and certainly proved himself to be by far the best jockey in the Colony.

MR. BUTLER OUT OF NOVICES CLASS.

Mr. E. O. Butler won his tenth race on Saturday afternoon on Workable Stag and thus "graduated" out of the novices class. He has improved wonderfully of late and is a dependable jockey and his many friends, I am sure, will join me in wishing him a long and successful career on the Hong Kong turf. He is certainly keen and deserves any success that comes to him.

The opening event of the day found the public backing Mr. Frost heavily for a win on Pocahontas and the pony did not disappoint. Mr. Frost kept the pony well placed during the race and asked him for a big effort in the straight. Pocahontas responded nobly. Valeta with Mr. Harriman up, took second place, and Echo, after showing in front most of the way, had to give way in the straight and be satisfied with third place.

Army Hall.

In the second race of the day, Army Hall, with Mr. A. A. R. Botelho up, turned out a winner. The much fancied Kate did not seem to like the going over the first three furlongs and it was not until the Village was reached that he showed any sign of moving. When he did move, the pony caught up rapidly and but for the fact that Mr. de Rozz could find no opening in the rails and had to swing out in the straight, the pony might have won. He showed a very great turn of speed in his last few strides. Meanwhile Army Hall had been kept in the van all the way, and although The Lion threatened to give him a close race, the former managed to shake him off and draw away to win by a length. Kate just nosed out The Lion from second place.

Mr. Frost Again.

Mr. Frost began his string of six winners with a victory on White Jade Stag, the least-backed pony in a field of five. Valorous carried all the money but was never in the picture until the straight was reached when he drew in front. He was immediately challenged by White Jade Stag, who also had come up from the rear and Mr. Frost won in a thrilling finish by half a length. Nippy and Tontine led in the earlier stages of the race, but Nippy was the first to tire, allowing Tontine to enter by himself into the straight, but the pony once he found himself in front alone, appeared to give up and it was then that he was passed by Valorous and Tontine.

In the fourth race, over a mile, Wonderful Stag, for some obscure reason, was made the favourite. The pony was unplaced. Adam made all the running and Mr. Frost who rode Little Beaver was content to stay in the middle of a field of twelve. There was nothing in the race, Champagne Bay and Adam fighting for the lead most of the time until the straight was reached when Little Beaver shot through them seemingly without effort to win by three lengths. Champagne Bay finished second and Adam was third.

How Season Ticket Fell.

Season Ticket with 180 pounds on the saddle, was still the public's choice for the mile, and a quarter race for the Australian class. The race was one long surprise from beginning to end. First, Mr. Frost on Woodland Stag took the lead, which was unusual for the combination, but that was not all for Woodland Stag was sent out after him and Mr. Reidy's mount responded so well that the two ponies simply lapped up the third quarter, doing the first three quarters of a mile in a little more than 1 minute 23 seconds. Season Ticket had then passed Woodland Stag and was leading by four lengths at the Rock. Then Woodland Stag began the task of reducing the gap and inch by inch crept up on Season Ticket who was only two lengths in front on entering the straight. At the distance post the two ponies were still a length and a half apart and Mr. Frost had just begun to swing out on Woodland Stag to take a straight run home when Season Ticket was seen to stumble and fall head over heels, throwing Mr. Reidy on the right side. In a flash Woodland Stag had passed him to win by many lengths from the rest of the field.

Passing of Season Ticket.

Meanwhile the public's attention was all focused on Season Ticket and Mr. Reidy. The latter got up just after the fall but Season Ticket after regaining its legs, was seen to limp and after a few strides stood stock still, apparently in great agony. The humane destroyer was brought into play and within a few seconds, one of the finest Australian ponies to grace the local race course became a thing of the past.

In the very next race, Mr. Reidy was due to ride Bag and Baggage, but he was unable to take the pony out and the mount was given to Mr. Frost, who won easily, doing the distance in record time. The pony started such a hot favourite that the public had to pay 17-1 against for a bet on Bag and Baggage.

The Gadwall provided Mr. Frost with his fifth consecutive win of the afternoon. The pony figured well in the start and led practically all the way home accompanied by his stable companions, The Shoveller, ridden by Mr. Butler. Mr. S. Y. Laing on Christmas Joy and Mr. Pan on Gold Bar dead heated for third place.

The Giraffe Again Wins.

The Giraffe won the race for "B" Class Australian ponies and gave Mr. Frost his sixth consecutive and seventh win of the afternoon. Aurora, a little fancied pony, finished second and City of Melbourne, in spite of his 175 pounds, finished third. Gold Digger was a very good fourth.

Novices Event.

The Novices event provided a real thrill to the "fans." Workable Stag carried twice as many tickets as any other pony, and Indiana was second in demand, carrying 600 winning tickets and 620 place tickets against Workable Stag's figures of 1,304 and 1,500, respectively. From the grand stands, it was seen that the gate went up with Indiana left, but he quickly made up the several lengths that he thus lost and took the lead early on. The much-fancied Workable Stag was seen to take a very wide turn and to pull up. Punters thought that Mr. Butler was experiencing some trouble with the mount until they saw some of the others pull up. The field had gone a quarter of a mile and Indiana had gone practically half a mile when the public and some of the novices realised that it was a false start. A second start was made when the field was collected again and this time they went off evenly. Indiana, Workable Stag and Cabinet Hall made all the running, but Workable Stag proved too good for them in the straight and finished four lengths ahead of Indiana with Cabinet Hall third.

The Last Race.

Kanpaz showed that he could run when he led all the way home in the last race of the day over six furlongs. Public Money was second and The Wind third. There were no fewer than ten starters here and The Wind was hot favourite, but he only just managed to get a place.

POLICE OFFICERS' PROTEST.

PETITION SENT TO THE GOVERNOR.

OBJECT TO SYSTEM OF DUTY HOURS.

Practically every British officer below the rank of Sub-Inspector of the Hong Kong Police Force has signed a petition to the Governor protesting against the system of duty hours which has been in force since the anti-Japanese riots, whereby every man has to do eight hours' duty in twenty-four hours. It is held that such hours are far too long for men in the Tropics, and that the way in which they are laid down to be served, four hours on and eight off, prevents the men from obtaining sufficient sleep and places organised sport almost out of the question.

The feeling in the force is that in cases of emergency, such as the anti-Japanese riots, the officers are ready and willing to serve twenty-four hours in the day if required, and in fact many men stationed at Central during that trying period actually did serve thus, but it is felt that to continue the practice of eight hours' duty in normal times is imposing on the force to an unbearable extent.

The petition has been signed by almost every Crown and Lance-Sergeant both in city districts and in the New Territories: there are one or two abstainers, mostly officers who are not personally suffering any hardship by the resented regulation.

Changes in Service Conditions.

Considerable resentment has been caused in the force by radical departures made by the Government from the conditions of service placed before police recruits in England before they have signed any contract with the Crown Agents.

To quote two instances: the hours of duty as laid down in the agreement signed by every man before he comes to Hong Kong are six hours in twenty-four in the land police and eight hours in twenty-four in the water police, though there is the proviso "or otherwise as the Captain Superintendent of Police may direct"; then a recruit is told that he signs on for a period of five years and will return to England for leave at the end of four, whereas a regulation is now in force to the effect that every officer serving his first term of five years will be required to complete a full term of five years before going home on leave: many men came out to Hong Kong under the impression that after four years out here he will go home on leave, whereas without his being able to protest, he now must wait five years for his leave.

Officers receive one day's leave a fortnight, while many and various are the duties an officer may have to perform during the time when he is normally off duty without any compensation of time off.

RESTAURANT FRACAS.

SAILOR WHO WAS REFUSED BEER.

Able Seaman T. P. Carroll, H.M.S. Caradoc, was brought before Mr. W. Schofield at Central Magistracy on three charges, (a) assaulting a Chinese, (b) causing malicious damage to a wooden door, the property of Mr. T. Houishe, of 90, Johnson Road, and (c) causing malicious damage to two earthenware pots and 18 dishes at the Tai Shing Restaurant.

To each of these charges, Carroll returned a plea of not guilty.

Smashed Down Door.

Detective Sub-Ins. Rozeskovy, who prosecuted, told the Court that just before midnight on Friday, the defendant, in company with another raving, went to the Tai Shing Restaurant, but it was closed. They went upstairs and knocked on the door of Mr. Houishe, who apparently would not serve them.

They smashed the door down and went to the restaurant but when they were refused beer, began to break things on the premises. Carroll's friend got away, but Carroll's went to the Wanchai Police Station and reported that they had refused to sell him beer. This led to the charges being brought.

After evidence was taken the following fines were imposed:—(a) $5, (b) $25, (c) $25, with an additional $30 compensation.

THE WATER SUPPLY.

NEW FOUNTAINS REDUCE SIZE OF QUEUES.

A tour of the district affected by the introduction of new street fountains shows that the longer hours of supply available at the new fountains has to some degree relieved the congestion of householders waiting for their daily ration of water. This does not imply, by any stretch of imagination, that the new street fountain has eliminated all the hardships attached to the troublesome method of having to draw one's water, in this hot weather, from the street fountains.

However, the period of waiting at the fountains, which under the old system, was sometime as long as twelve hours, has now been cut down. With the old street fountains running for an hour and a half in the morning and an equal period in the afternoon, and with the new fountains running for 11 hours a day, it is now possible to get water without waiting so long. The lines of time lined up at the fountains are now shorter and, it is certain that those who are favoured with water meters in their houses are glad that a little restriction on their hours of water supply, coupled with the spending of $25,000 of public money, has to some extent, relieved the pitiful state of affairs in the Central and Eastern district of the Colony.

PASSENGER VESSEL SUNK.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE FEARED.

SURVIVORS LANDED IN HONG KONG.

The s.s. Hoikun, a Chinese river boat plying as ferry between Canton and San Mei, struck a rock or some submerged wreckage near the island of San Chau on Friday night, and sank with loss of life. The exact number of passengers and crew drowned in the wreck cannot be ascertained until definite information regarding the passenger list is forthcoming: it is known, however, that 40 people were saved, out of a total estimate of which vary between 45 and 60.

The first vessel to reach the scene after the Hoikun had struck was a small Chinese fishing junk, which saved 13 passengers and 14 members of the crew who had jumped panic-stricken into the water, and took them to Tai O police station, on Lantau Island, British Territory.

S.S. Tai Lee Arrives on Scene.

A number of coasting and river steamers arrived soon after, foremost of them being the Tai Lee, on the Hong Kong-Kongmoon run, commanded by Captain H.S. Loud. The Tai Lee was unable to go alongside the wrecked vessel on account of the rocks and shoals, but she anchored a short distance away and launched a boat, which was got away with some difficulty owing to a choppy sea. The lifeboat reached the scene after the Hoikun had sunk but was able to pick 13 survivors out of the water, and these were taken back to the Tai Lee in an exhausted condition.

Further search failed to reveal more survivors.

Panic ensued when the Hoikun struck the rocks or wreckage, and terrified passengers poured into the only lifeboat carried by the ship and swamped it. Rockets were sent up and flares were burnt to attract the attention of passing vessels, while S.O.S. messages were sent out by the wireless operator of the Tai Lee as soon as her captain realised that a ship was wrecked.

Submerged Wreckage.

The master of the Hoikun, Chan Yee, reported to the police that he attributed the disaster to submerged wreckage. The ship, which was carrying 4 1/2 tons of cargo, sank in 6 fathoms of water. She was an old vessel of Chinese registry, and her value is unknown.

SWATOW STRIKE ENDS.

SHIPPING COMPANIES OFFER ACCEPTED.

NEW MAYOR AND SCHOOL APPOINTMENTS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Swatow, May 25.

Mr. S. T. Wong, head of the Municipal Government, has already got the "order of the book," and many reasons have been advanced for his dismissal. One by the name of Tek has been appointed in his place and was officially installed into office on the 5th inst. The local merchants greatly rejoice over what they term as a good riddance on account of the tremendous exactions they suffered during his term of office. Sometime ago a strong joint petition was sent to Nanking demanding his immediate dismissal: a list of extortions was even published in the vernacular papers with the names of the merchants concerned.

Mr. Tek, accompanied by his secretaries, has already called on the Consular Body. On the day of appointment a huge reception was given in the Municipal Building, which was beflagged and illuminated for five days and nights. Representatives of the Press, various organizations, guilds, societies, schools etc., were present at the inauguration. According to press reports Tek holds the French L.L.D., and was educated in Belgium as well. He is Gen. Lee Yong Kong's nominee, with which latter gentleman S. T. Wong was far from being popular.

End of Strike.

The coolie-lighter strike inflicted against Jardines, B. & S., and the China Merchants, as previously reported, came to an end last Saturday, the head-coolies agreeing to the shipping companies' original offer to pay all coolie-hire in arrears from November last till the end of this month. Commencing from June 1 the consignees will have the option of either paying their own coolie-hire or withdrawing from shipping by these lines.

Schools on Strike.

Apparently the new Mayor has been looking for trouble. When he got installed into office he appointed his own Principals for two Municipal schools—one for boys and the other for girls. The fact that he gave no reason for the sudden change naturally enraged the students and the teachers and at the instigation of the latter the boys and girls stopped studies abruptly.

One fine morning no one was to be seen in either school. Even the servants have been coaxed to stay away and a strike has now been going on for several days. The new Principals were appointed all the same. Orders have been issued that, if the teachers do not return in the meantime new ones will be signed on, but we know in China no one dares to be a strike-breaker. A rumour is current that a sympathetic strike will be instituted by the rest of the schools in this port.

Automatic Telephones.

Before long Swatow will boast of an imposing building which is to house the new automatic telephone company. It is situated in the centre of the main road; work has been proceeding day and night to hurry completion within two months.

It is said the China Realty Co., of Shanghai, are financing the enterprise. When the building is complete the business will first be operated by them. A certain amount of the profits will be retained regularly, plus interest on the capital invested, and the handling over to the promoters is to be effected as soon as the full amount is repaid.

SHOP FOKI RUNS AMOK.

THREE MEN INJURED IN EARLY MORNING INCIDENT.

ATTEMPT TO SET SHOP ON FIRE.

A two-storied building in Queen's Road West, the ground floor of which was used as a joss-paper shop and the upper storey house some of the employees, was the scene of a ghastly crime yesterday morning when both the Police and the Fire Brigade were summoned to the scene.

From resultant inquiries it would seem that the perpetrator of the crime must have run amok for there is apparently no motive whatever for his actions.

At 4 o'clock in the morning, people sleeping in the ground floor of 48 Queen's Road West were roused from their beds by shouts of "save life" and shrieks from fellow occupants of the flat. One of the joks, a nephew of the master of the shop, having armed himself with a chopper, which is a kitchen utensil in every Chinese household, had proceeded to hack the people in the shop with that dangerous implement.

Three people in the shop were chopped by the maniac, these being an old man of sixty, and two youths of 24 and 18, respectively. All the men, however, though badly injured, are in no danger of losing their lives. They were treated in the Government Civil Hospital as soon as it was possible to remove them from the scene of the crime.

After chopping the inmates of the shop, the man who ran amok attempted to set fire to the premises. Precisely what he did does not seem clear, but, in any case, he managed to set alight some of the contents of the shop. This outbreak, however, was discovered by the joks before it could spread and as a result was put out before the arrival of the Fire Brigade which had by this time received a call from that locality.

The wanted man is believed to have left the premises without even putting on his shoes. A very full description of the maniac was supplied to the Police, who are on the lookout for him.

"CARADOC" LEAVES TO-DAY.

OBEYS THE HOMING INSTINCT.

This morning will see the departure for England of another of our old friends, H.M.S. Caradoc, who has been making a short stay here on her passage home.

Unfortunately for Hong Kong, the hibernating instincts of this type of waterfowl have left us few opportunities of making her better acquaintance.

Unlike the swallow, the call of the winter drives the Caradoc far up the Yangtze Valley, there to hibernate amongst the rigours and hardships of Hankow.

For seven months little more than rumour is heard of her doings there among the "Insects" and "Waterfowl," but the return of the hot weather brings her southward once again in search of warmth and diversion in Hong Kong.

About every two years she is prone to the common instinct of such warlike waterfowl to pay a visit to her native haunts in England, and it is just such an instinct that now draws her on to face the dangers and monsoons of the Indian Ocean. Guided always by her unerring instinct, she reaches her native haunts in early July, there to wallow during the brief English summer in the limpid waters of a West Country harbour.

The call of Hankow should see her migrating once again, with the return of next winter, and we hope to see her passing through the port some time this autumn, this time with a new commission of Officers and men.

To those of this present complexion who would therefore bid a fond and hearty farewell, hoping it may be their fortune in the near future to serve in other warlike waterfowl with such pleasant and human instincts.

SHIPPING RISKS.

It was a long cry from the Georges Philippot, the beautiful French ship, that looked as if she had been made of ivory, to the humble ferry launch Hoi Kun, which sank on Friday evening in the Pearl River. Both, however, have been reminders that risk still attaches to travelling by water. Curiously enough Friday also saw two big shipping mishaps; the s.s. Grecian was sunk near New York in a dense fog and the I. Lang was lost with heavy casualty list in the Yangtze Gorges.

Though shipwrecks are few compared with the vast number of vessels plying both inland and deep-sea waters it is obvious that much remains to be done to reduce the toll of the sea. Certain great ship-ping companies of all nations have brought their losses to what would seem the irreducible minimum, and the lessons of their methods are of the greatest value. No ships can, however, be safe in a fog; great storms must always be a source of anxiety, and allowance must be made for the personal element not made for in one's own ship but on the part of the vessels met in crowded fairways and during thick weather. The popular belief is that a well-found ship should ride out the worst weather. In point of fact every typhoon in the area effected by these disturbances, and every bad storm in the Atlantic sea a number of losses. The wreck of the Kwong Sang is still vivid in our minds, and two years ago the Vestria was lost, partly by bad judgment, St. Francis Hotel. Later they returned mainly owing to the pitiless battering by hurricane seas. The road to safety lies in the existence of the elaborate lifeboat service round the British coast is in itself evidence of the power of the storm over all but the strongest ships.

The world of shipping has a long way to go before the old crocks are eliminated. It is true that vessels of doubtful soundness are mainly kept to coastal and inter-island trade where they are supposed to be seldom out of sight of land and able to run to shelter should bad weather arise. But despite all precautions, their weakness finds them out and this is the class that suffers most heavily.

The wreck of the Titanic in 1912 demonstrated that no ship was unsinkable. A long period of immunity in the class of big liners had, moreover, allowed boat drill, and other precautions, and even the provision of boats, to sink into an easy-going neglect based on the assumption that nothing could go wrong. Then, as now, when safety clashed with the time schedule, the former was often sacrificed. The sinking of the Empress of Ireland in the St. Lawrence not long after again showed that risks at sea had not been eradicated by mere size of ships. Essential improvements were made in all directions, but only after nearly three thousand lives had been lost. There are those who resent the light discipline of a well-run liner, but they ought to know by now that a ship is not a moving hotel and those who trifle with the sea will suffer sooner or later.

Improved instruments of navigation, wireless, meteorological services and a rigid enforcement of Board of Trade regulations still leave the failure of the human element as a source of risk. The Titanic was sunk because the officer on watch forgot that most of an iceberg is under water. He avoided the obstacle that he saw and the invisible enemy tore out the ship's side. JOSEPH CONRAD described in his book "The Mirror of the Sea" those ghoulies of shipping the water-logged hulks that haunt all seas; yet another insalubrious peril is the uncharted rock thrown up by seismic upheavals.

The loss of the Georges Philippot gives a new warning. How the fire that destroyed the ship started is less important than the manner in which it spread. Fires aboard ship are common enough. Plenty of water is available and the trouble is usually unimportant. A fused wire, a cigarette-end, metal or a mirror acting as a burning glass, may cause an outbreak in any vessel, and such dangers cannot be eliminated. The lavish lacquer and enamel and all the beautiful fittings were, it has been suggested, fuel of a kind unprecedented in ship-board fires. Decorators of luxury liners may have to call a halt to their lavish ingenuity. Probably no thought has ever been given to the danger arising from an ornamentation, furnishing and design modelled on the axioms of ship-construction. Safety first still has to take precedence, even over the whims of millionaires, when it is a question of dealing with the sea.

SOLDIER FINED.

DISPUTE WITH TAXI-DRIVER—OVER FARE.

Private John Roberts of the South Wales Borderers made an appearance before Mr. Wynne Jones at Central Magistracy on Saturday when he was charged with having assaulted Yuen Fan, a taxi-driver, at Gough Hill Police Station on Friday night.

Roberts, who at the time, was in company with Private S. J. Owens and Private D. J. Price, both of the same regiment, pleaded not guilty. In the witness-box, the driver said the party engaged his vehicle at the Ferry Wharf. They intended at the Ferry Wharf. They intended to go to the Peak but on reaching Stubbs Road, they changed their minds and decided to return to the lost, partly by bad judgment, St. Francis Hotel. Later they returned mainly owing to the pitiless battering by hurricane seas. The road to safety lies in the existence of the elaborate lifeboat service round the British coast is in itself evidence of the power of the storm over all but the strongest ships.

After hearing the soldiers' story, the Magistrate remarked that the defence was very unsatisfactory and imposed a fine of $10. Lieut. Crosswell, S.W.B., said that Roberts was a good, clean soldier, and had never had a charge of this nature brought against him before.

Tale of the Day.

The teacher was giving a lesson on Shakespeare's and St. George's Day, and he asked the class what also happened on Shakespeare's birthday, April 23.

Small Voice: "Cap Anam! Sir."

Lord Trenchard's Way.

This is the way in which Lord Trenchard, Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police, likes conferences to be conducted. It was when in France he took over from Sir David Henderson the command of the R.F.C. in the field. He called a conference of his chief officers and began thus:—

"Gentlemen; there are two kinds of conferences: one when one man addresses it; the other when everyone talks and no one listens." Then he added: "I have never held a conference of the second kind."

M. Tardieu.

M. Tardieu has the reputation of being the best informed Minister in Europe. His precise knowledge is the reward of hard work and of his journalistic training. For twenty years he has kept the most elaborate system of press cuttings, and to-day there is hardly a political personality or subject which does not figure in his files.

Boy Batsman Hits Train.

While Ashby-de-la-Zouch (Leicestershire) Grammar School boys were practising at cricket on a ground beside the L.M.S. railway line, one of them, C. Apenor, made a fine drive of 70 yards to leg, and the ball went through a window in a passing passenger train. The railway company, apparently mistaking the incident for a boyish prank, wrote to the school asking for the names of the boys who had been playing. It is understood that the reply was that the school would willingly pay for the damage to the carriage window, but that the drive was not regarded as a blot on the school's escutcheon.

Lausanne.

The Lausanne Conference will open in the third week of June. Those members of the British delegation who were present at the first Lausanne Conference in 1923 will not re-enter the hospitable portals of the Hotel Beauvivre, without vivid memories of that earlier and singular occasion.

No conference was more fruitful in tragic or in comic incidents. There was the assassination of the Soviet delegate, M. Vorovsky. There was the expulsion from Switzerland of a journalist accused of making a midnight assault on a Rumanian delegate. And finally there was the richly comic and justly celebrated incident of Lord Curzon's valet and the Foreign Secretary's missing trousers.

In Society.

The valet in question had long interested fellow-guests in the hotel. He had successfully imitated the bearing of his employer, and one of the few distinctions of the tedious Conference was to watch the valet usher Lord Curzon into the hotel lift. On the evening the valet made an appropriate entry into society. He invited the daughter of a Balkan diplomat to dance. Taking him for a British attaché, the lady accepted. But after one foxtrot the burden of supporting an inexperienced partner proved too great for her, and she declined.

Missing Trousers.

The next morning the Foreign Secretary missed his trousers. He rang for his valet, but there was no reply. At last he awoke a secretary. The secretary walked into the valet's bedroom and found the man sleeping with Lord Curzon's trousers clasped in his embrace.

The valet was summoned to the Foreign Secretary's presence. There was a short and sharp encounter, in which majesty replied to majesty, and then the valet departed for London, mournful but still dignified.

Cider.

The consumption of cider is on the increase all over England. Formerly seen but rarely in London restaurants, it is now a favourite drink at lunch time. One of the latest devices is to add a touch of gin to it to give it body. Several clubs are now selling draught cider.

Dr. Anna May Wong.

The University of Peiping has just conferred on Miss Anna May Wong an honorary degree of doctor. The diploma states that the honour has been granted to her for her services in propagating abroad "the beauty, charm and intelligence of the women of China."

While China reserves her distinctions for her own film star, the Japanese are more modern. Tokyo has presented a beautiful gold kimono, such as is worn only by the Imperial family on great State occasions, to Miss Marlene Dietrich as a token of its gratitude for her magnificent acting.

Schoolboy Golfers.

Although football and cricket in their respective seasons are considered to be the most important games for public school boys, masters no longer discourage pupils from taking up golf during the vacation. The rapid development of the boys' golf championships is evidence of the growing tolerance towards schoolboy golf.

Ennui to the Mahatma.

Mr. Oswald Birley's rejected Academy painting of Gandhi is probably the best portrait of the meek inmate of Poona Gaol ever painted.

Gandhi is not easy to paint; for although courteous to the artists, he will not interrupt his literary or political labours to pose for them.

Mr. Jo Davidson, the well-known American sculptor, who made a very successful bust of the Mahatma during the Round Table Conference, admitted that Gandhi steadfastly refused to sit in such a position that his head could be modelled.

Most of the time he allocated to the sculptor he spent in sleeping in a blanket stretched on the floor, and Mr. Davidson was obliged to go down on his hands and knees in order to examine the features of the dormant Mahatma.

★ Local Notes and Events ★

The name of Our Store, Limited, has been struck off the Register.

Through falling into a dry dock a distance of about 38 feet, a workman of the Tanco Dock, Nam Fung, received a fractured skull.

Four cases of enteric fever and two of cerebro-spinal fever were reported on Friday. There was a clean bill of health for Thursday.

It is notified that Mr. Philip Jucks has resumed duty as Land Officer on the termination of his appointment to be an additional Judge of the Supreme Court.

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government has appointed Mr. John Charles Lang to act as Assistant Secretary to the Sanitary Board.

The weekly whist drives organised by the Police Recreation Club will be resumed on Thursday, at 8.30 p.m., at the Club's pavilion at Happy Valley.

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government has appointed Dr. J. W. Anderson to be a Member of the Medical Board, for a term of three years.

It is notified that during the absence on leave of Senior Don Patricio Smart-Fabres, Consul for Chile in Hong Kong, Mr. Antonio Botelho will be in charge of the Chilean Consulate.

At to-morrow's meeting of the Rotary Club, Major E. C. Ducloux, the newly-appointed Trade Commissioner for Canada in Hong Kong, will speak on "Economic Conditions in Canada."

The orchestral concert organised by the China Light & Power Recreation Club, which took place on the Club's ground, King's Park, on Saturday night was an unqualified success, a very large crowd being present. It is understood that part of the proceeds will be donated to local charities.

And to Lenin!

Another artist who was once obliged to kneel in order to study the face of a celebrated model is Mrs. Clara Sheridan. Lenin, like Gandhi, steadily refused to sit for his bust. The utmost concession he would make was to tolerate her presence in his room in the Kremlin.

But he kept his head obstinately bowed over the papers on his desk, and in order to study Lenin's face, the sculptress was forced to kneel on the floor in front of the desk and peer up at him.

While she was thus engaged both artist and model heard a sudden howl of laughter. It came from the imp-like Radek, who had been lying reading newspapers on a sofa in Lenin's room and whose malicious eye had just perceived the comedy of the situation.

Versatility of L. G. Crawley.

L. G. Crawley is not one of those who believes that golf interferes with cricket or cricket with golf. He hopes to play cricket fairly regularly for Essex this season, until he has to begin serious practice for the Walker Cup matches in America later in the summer.

Crawley has played both games consistently. He is the amateur golf champion, and upon his one appearance in first-class cricket last season he made a very fine 96 for Essex.

A versatile athlete, he is a triple Cambridge Blue, having gained his colours for cricket, golf, and racket. He made the biggest score of his cricket career in 1923, when he hit up 222 against Glamorgan.

A Ginger Brotherhood.

A brighter cricket experiment was arranged by Mr. B. H. Lyon: says a Home paper: On April 30 he will lead Gloucestershire against an All Comers' XI in a match in which each side will be allotted only three hours for batting. The Lyon scheme proceeds from the brain not of "B. H." but of his elder brother, "M. D." the Somerset wicket-keeper and opening batsman.

It is set out pithily and with considerable force of argument in Mr. M. D. Lyon's new book on cricket, which will be published in a few days.

Hard on Tennis.

This book, I imagine, will cause something of a flutter among cricket lovers. It is controversial. His book will irritate lawn tennis-players, for, greatly daring, he sets out a list of games in the order of skill which they demand. Cricket comes first, followed by golf, billiards, real tennis, "soccer," and "rugger." Lawn tennis comes last—after ludo and spilling ink!

Mr. Lyon himself is no mean lawn tennis player. He was one of the two cricketers at Cambridge who in a doubles match defeated the University first lawn tennis pair.

NO CLOUD-BURST
AT FANLING.HEAVY SHOWER AND SWOLLEN-RUMOURS.

Rumours were current in the City last night that there had been a cloud burst at Fanling during the afternoon, that streams were swollen and that the roads were under a foot of water. Investigation, however, rapidly reduced the "cloud burst" to an hour and a quarter's intermittent rain, sufficiently heavy to thoroughly soak many golfers playing on the Fanling course.

One of the golfers, a well-known local business man, courteously gave the facts of the "deluge" to our representative over the telephone last night, though the hour was somewhat late.

He received with amusement the suggestion that the golf course had been visited by a cloud burst. "It certainly rained a lot and soaked us through," he said, "but I saw nothing that could be described as a cloud burst. From about 3 o'clock to 4.15 it rained fairly heavily, though not continuously. We could see rain falling in the distance though at times none was falling on us." Our informant went on to say that after the "showers," as he described them, the weather cleared up and became glorious. Scenes of swollen streams and inundated roads such as accompanied the Shatin Railway Disaster last year were conspicuous by their absence.

The somewhat unusual phenomenon of a waterspout forming over land was observed from the golf course just before 4.15 by an official of the Royal Observatory. The spout formed in the clouds and the base connected with the land, but as there was no water to be drawn up the spout dispersed. "Such phenomena are not uncommon in hilly districts with a wind blowing," remarked the official, who added that a slight shower of rain took place during the morning, the time of the waterspout being shortly after noon.

Although yesterday's rain at Fanling will not affect the position as regards the Colony's shortage, it is not perhaps altogether unreasonable to hope that in view of these meteorological disturbances the end of the drought is in sight.

FURTHER FLOODS
IN ENGLANDHEAVIEST RAINFALL
SINCE 1886

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

London, May 28. Renewed flood havoc was caused today in the North-East and Midlands by heavy rain in the past twenty-four hours. Yorkshire, North and Lincoln being particularly affected.

A large area between Newark and Gainsborough is submerged, where the River Trent has broken its banks at three points. The water in some places is over two miles across and reaches a depth of fifteen feet. The mining town of Bentley, near Doncaster, which has already suffered very heavily, has again been menaced, and over 1,000 houses in the district are uninhabitable.

A conference of local authorities, property owners and farmers of the entire area between Sheffield and Gainsborough has been summoned to consider a means to prevent a recurrence of the present catastrophe.

The rainfall for May, as recorded at Kew Observatory, exceeds three and a half inches, which is the heaviest since the year 1886.

"Wettest May in Fifty Years."
(Reuter's Special Service.)

London, May 29. England has had the wettest May in fifty years. The rainfall in the Thames valley is estimated at 5.1 inches, while the average May rainfall for the last thirty-five years has been under two inches.

The floods in the North Midlands, which had subsided have again become made worse owing to the incessant rain of yesterday.

BRITISH AMATEUR
GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

DE FOREST BEATS FIDDIAN

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

Muirfield, May 29. In the final of the British Amateur Golf Championship De Forest beat Fiddian by 3 and 1.

In the Amateur Golf Championship final John de Forest was four up on Eric Fiddian at the end of the morning round, after being six up at the seventh hole.

Triumph of Youth.

(Reuter's Special Service.)

London, May 27. This year's British amateur golf championship has again proved a brilliant triumph for golfing youth, and particularly for John de Forest, the son of a millionaire, who reached the final last year only to be beaten by Eric Martin-Smith.

Both Martin-Smith and de Forest were passed over by the British Walker Cup selection committee, apparently thinking that their appearance in last year's final was purely fortuitous.

On His Mettle.

Martin-Smith was beaten in the first round this year, but John de Forest was on his mettle and has again won his way into the final, practically proving that his omission from the team was a ghastly mistake.

His opponent in the final will be Eric Fiddian, the twenty-one-year-old ex-Oxford University captain, who won the English Open Amateur Championship over the Royal St. George's Course at Sandwich last month.

Fiddian is the youngest player in Britain to win a national championship, though he has represented England against Scotland in international matches.

He now has an opportunity of winning the English and British championships in the same season a feat which has seldom, if ever, been performed before.

He meets John de Forest, who is 25 years of age, in a battle over thirty-six holes for the championship to-morrow.

Meanwhile, it has been announced that both John de Forest and Eric Fiddian will be included in the British Walker Cup team to visit America this year.

London, May 28. The probable runners in the Derby are as follows:—Andren (Freddie Fox), April Fifth (Lane), Bacchus (Marshall), Buckle (Weston), Celebrator (Burns), Cockpen (Gordon Richards), Corey (Quirk), Dastur (Beary), Fir d'Aussi (Steve Donoghue), Hesperus (E. Elliott), Jackdan (Joe Child), Jiveh (Canny), Lieghon (Brennan), Miracle (Harry Wragg), Orwell (R. Jones), Peter Planet (Fred Rickaby), Porto Pino (Nevett), Royal Dancer (Sam Wragg), Spencer (Dick), Summer Planet (Smirke), Sunny Brough (Harry Bensley), Totais (Carslake) and Wyvern (Jelliss).

The mixing of Irish Sweep counter foils, of which there were 9,000,000 in drums in preparation for the draw on May 30 began today with pomp and ceremony transforming Dublin with an atmosphere of Carnival in the City.

A procession of pretty girls in fancy costumes and accompanied by music and gaiety preceded the biggest lottery in Dublin in which the counterfoils were loaded in drums and carried from the Hospital's Trust Office to the Plaza Theatre a mile distant.

Contributions to the sweep this year is expected to exceed £4,000,000.

Headed by Matador, the Irish racehorse, which was ridden by a pretty girl dressed in jockey's kit, the procession arrived at the Plaza Theatre, whereupon there was an outburst of applause at the doors by a gay troop of girls wearing the colours of such famous racehorses as H.M. the King, Lord Derby, Lord Harewood, the Aga Khan, the Rothschilds, Sir Aubrey Bailey and other Lords of the Turf.

Inside the Plaza Theatre, the boxes were opened and the counterfoils placed in the mixing machine where they are to be blown hither and thither for two days before the draw decides the fortunes of the favourites.

EUROPEAN EYES
ON FRANCEGOVERNMENT'S POLICY
AWAITED WITH INTEREST

(Reuter's Special Service.)

PARIS, May 29. European Governments are anxiously awaiting the policy of the new French Government as they are now on the threshold of international negotiations including Lusitania.

M. Herriot is at present considering what course he will follow. M. Painleve, who is assured of a portfolio in the new Government, proposes a solution of the reparations and war debts problem by the creation of an international clearing house which will work out a general final settlement between creditors and debtors, economic arrangements being set off against debts which are now repayable.

(Reuter's Special Service.)

LONDON, May 28. Sir Charles and Lady Warde escaped in their night-clothes when fire broke out in their historic home at Barham Court near Maidstone, Kent.

Although he is 80 years old, Sir Charles pluckily returned to help to fight the flames and repeatedly ran into the blazing house to rescue valuable furniture and pictures.

Barham Court which is one of the finest mansions in Kent and originally belonged to one of the Knights who murdered Thomas a Becket, was almost completely destroyed.

STIFFKEY TRIAL

RECTOR'S FINANCIAL TROUBLES

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, May 27. "For this relief much thanks," remarked the Chancellor of the Consistory Court, Mr. F. K. North, at the conclusion of the cross-examination of the Rev. H. E. Davidson, Rector of Stiffkey, who is charged with immoral conduct.

The cross-examination of the accused Rector, who denies all the accusations, by Mr. Oliver, K.C., prosecution counsel, lasted for twenty-eight hours.

The Rector fervently echoed, "Hear, Hear!" to the Chancellor's comment.

Financial Trouble.

To-day's proceedings were continued upon a letter to the Bishop of Norwich (who is laying the complaint) in which the Rector alleges that his financial trouble was due to a breach of faith by the Bishop in regard to an appointment in India for the Rev. Davidson.

It was revealed during the hearing that a receiving order was made out against Mr. Davidson on November 8, 1925, and the order for adjudication in March, 1926. Gross liabilities were given as £2,924 and assets as £2,923. Of the assets, four were described as "doubtful debts amounting to £2,156."

Practically all the assets were debts owing to Mr. Davidson and they realised nothing at all. Arrangements were made whereby the Official Receiver took half the Rector's stipend for his creditors. The living was worth about £240 a year.

ADULTERIES OF ART.

LORD BADEN-POWELL ON THE ACADEMY.

Lord Baden-Powell, the Chief Scout, who is an artist and has exhibited sculpture at the Royal Academy, made some caustic comments on this year's pictures when opening an exhibition of arts and crafts at Alton, Hampshire.

He said he had just left the Academy, where he was told there was a notable picture by a girl aged fifteen. "When he heard that he was more than surprised, because he thought a large number of pictures there must be by children of five, and he was glad to learn that at least one was by a girl of fifteen."

The Academy exhibition was very depressing to him, and all he could say about it was to quote Ben Jonson:

"Adulteries of art
They strike mine eyes but not my heart."
"One sees too much of people," he said, "who are 'nobodies' trying to inflict upon us some awful things on canvas to entice people to go and find out the names of those who painted them."

There was no news until they were found dead in the wreckage of the machine in a thickly wooded mountain near Veroli, in the province of Frosinone.

The British Columbia Government has stipulated that the Province shall be on exhibition to them. The itinerary covers seven weeks, and a journey of about 12,000 miles. Consultations with the Board of Trade and other official departments have been arranged, and the visitors have been invited to examine ranches, canneries, lumber camps and mining centres.

MAY 30 IN SHANGHAIPOLICE READY FOR EMERGENCIES

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

SHANGHAI, May 29. Everything points to a quiet May 30, though the police are taking no chances and are ready for any emergencies. Martial law prevails in Chinese territories and some Chinese newspapers intend to close their offices on Monday.

Public interest is generally flagging this year, but a new organization, designated the Shanghai People's Anti-Armistice Agreement and the North-Eastern Volunteers support the federation which is attempting to give the anniversary of the Nanking Road incident an anti-Japanese turn by publishing an advertisement calculated to inflame the public mind, alleging that a great number of Chinese were killed by being shelled and bayoneted. The Imperialists' Federation has arranged a memorial service on the Public Recreation Ground to which public bodies have been invited for the purpose of demonstrating that the anti-Japanese spirit has not been quenched and for discussing measures how to deal with the Japanese.

WORLD
DISARMAMENTAIRCRAFT SUGGESTION
BY BELGIUM

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUSSIA, May 27. The Naval Commission of the Disarmament Conference at Geneva to-day approved the report of an expert committee which has been considering what naval armaments are most specifically offensive or most efficacious against national defence or most threatening to civilians.

The report is inconclusive and merely records the divergence of the views of the different naval powers on the question of capital ships, aircraft-carriers and submarines.

The date of the meeting of the general committee at which the report will be discussed has not yet been fixed.

More Conversations.

Reports from Geneva suggest that further conversations between the heads of the Governments of the principal European Powers concerning the United States delegate, Mr. Hugh Gibson, will precede the meeting with a view to reaching an agreement. The reports state that it may be found convenient to hold such meetings between the heads of the various States immediately before the opening of the Lausanne Conference.

Air Committee.

The Air Committee had a further session at Geneva to-day but so far no agreement has been reached as to the definition of offensive aircraft. The Belgian delegate suggested that aeroplanes weighing 1,500 kilograms or with an engine horse-power of 550 or over should come into the same category.

China's View.

NANKING, May 28. Japan could not convene an international conference on China without the consent and participation of the Chinese Government, declared a National Government spokesman, who ridiculed as preposterous the proposal to convert Shanghai into a "free city."

China is, however, willing to attend a conference dealing with all outstanding Sino-Japanese issues, including Manchuria.

PURSUIT

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

HARBIN, May 28. After a bitter initial engagement, in which they fought determinedly for four days, the troops of Ma Chan Shan are still retreating rapidly to the north, according to Japanese reports.

The Japanese forces are in hot pursuit, employing cavalry and aeroplanes, which are keeping on the heels of the defeated army.

It is stated that the Japanese garrison at Tsitsihar has now reached Tainchen, 155 kilometres from Tsitsihar and on the Koshan Railway, driving the Chinese steadily to the north.

It is reported by Japanese sources that General Ma Chan Shan has now left Tatu for Tachiao, on hearing of the defeat of his troops on the Sungari and at Hulan.

Although the train service from Harbin to Suifu is now again operating, the line is not yet quiet. Yesterday's trains were subjected to very heavy rifle fire at various points.

General Uyeda, the new Commander-in-Chief, left hospital yesterday afternoon on crutches. He will take over the command of the Japanese forces remaining here, and will superintend their evacuation.

One Russian and 14 Chinese passengers suffered the same fate.

FIRE BRIGADE SAVES
SINKING HORSE.

THAMES DRAMA

After Old George, a big cart-horse, had been a target for pebbles thrown by children at White Hart Dock, Lambeth, he bolted, ran into the Thames mud, and began to sink.

Barges, workmen and police could not get him out. The tide was rising.

Then a passer-by sent for the fire brigade. Firemen set to work with ropes and tackle, and when Old George's head was only just above mud and water, they pulled him to safety.

A big crowd cheered, and even River Police stood up in a motor-launch and excitedly waved their arms.

Old George was none the worse, such places as picture galleries and zoos. It permits Sunday cinemas for London and other areas which had Sunday cinemas under special conditions before 1930.

It provides that other areas may proceed by special draft order for permission to open cinemas on Sunday but the order can only become effective if supported by the majority of the inhabitants in the area concerned.

DAVIS CUP TENNIS

AMERICA BEATS AUSTRALIA.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

New York, May 27. One of the most spectacular tennis matches seen in the United States for some time resulted from the meeting at Philadelphia to-day of Ellsworth Vines, America's No. 1 ranking player, and Crawford, the Australian champion. They clashed in the second singles match in the Davis Cup North American Zone Final, and when everything appeared to be over bar the shouting, Crawford staged a brilliant recovery. He did not win the match and he has not lost it.

After drawing level in the middle of the fourth set, rain began to fall heavily. It was announced that if the rain ceased, the match would be finished later in the day, but the rain continued to fall and a further announcement was made that a resumption had been arranged for 2.30 p.m. to-morrow. In the first match of the contest, America scored an easy victory, Frank X. Shields defeating Hopman (Australia) in straight sets. Hopman engaged in some capital rallies in the first set, which he lost 6-4, but the American's accurate hitting enabled him to dominate the rest of the match. He took the second set at 6-1 and the third at 6-2.

Epis Contest.

Vines and Crawford engaged in an epic struggle. The Australian was unable to cope with the swift returns and dashing attack of the youthful American champion in the first two sets. The first he lost 6-2 and the second at 6-4. Crawford had, however, been conserving his energy for the later stages. When the initial vigour of Vines had begun to fall off, he took the initiative, playing magnificent, sending over dazzling services and placements which entirely reversed the position. Vines defended staunchly, but conceded the third set at 6-2.

Rain Interferes.

The fourth set saw Vines making a great effort, and he ran quickly into a three-love lead. The Australian again rallied superbly and with a series of great strokes, drew up to 3-3 when the storm broke.

Scores:—Shields (U.S.A.) defeated Hopman (Australia), 6-4, 6-1, 6-2. Vines (U.S.A.) leads Crawford (Australia), 2-2, 6-4, 2-6, 3-3.

HOME CRICKET.

RAIN AGAIN SPOILS SPORT.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

London, May 28. Rain interfered seriously with the mid-week cricket programme and the majority of the games were decided on the first innings. Some remarkable bowling analysis were returned, the best being Hardings 5 wickets for 10 runs for Kent against Derby. Batting honours go to Nigel Haig, who played a typical captain's innings for 100 runs to give Middlesex first innings points against Northants at Headquarters.

DERBY v. KENT.

HARDINGE AND TOWNSEND.

What otherwise would have been a dull match was brightened by some good bowling by Hardinge and Townsend of Kent and Derby respectively when their counties met at Ilkeston. The match resulted in the home team taking first innings points by virtue of the small lead of 3 runs. Derby batted first when they made 116, Hardinge getting 5 wickets for 19 runs. Faced with this small total it looked as if Kent would pass it easily, but Townsend bowled well to take 6 wickets for 49 runs to help, in no small measure, to dismiss the hop county for 114. The scores were:—Derby, 1st innings 116
Hardinge, 5 for 19.
Kent, 1st innings 114
Townsend, 6 for 49.

SURREY v. WARWICK.

HOBBS STILL GOING STRONG.

Playing at the Oval, Surrey claimed first innings points from Warwick in a match which was considerably interfered with by the rain. The winners had first use of the wickets and Hobbs (74) and Shepherd (97) were mainly responsible for their respectable total of 288. Warwick was unlucky in failing to equal this total by the narrow margin of one run, their last wicket falling when the score stood at 297. Brown met with considerable success with the ball, his five wickets costing him 79 runs. Surrey then went in for the second time but after they had totalled 101 for 4 wickets, stumps had to be drawn. The scores were:—Surrey, 1st innings 288
Shepherd, 97.
Hobbs, 74.
Warwick, 1st innings 287
Brown, 5 for 79.
Surrey, 2nd innings (total for 4 wickets) 101

MIDDLESEX v. NORTHANTS.

HAIG GETS A CENTURY.

At Lords, rain did not permit of the game being played to a finish with the result that it ended in a win on the first innings for the home team. Northants had first knock and despite some good bowling by G. T. S. Stevens (6 for 68), managed to compile 141. Middlesex replied with 336 of which Nigel Haig claimed 109, while Cox did well to capture 5 wickets for 88 runs. The scores were:—Northants, 1st innings 141
Stevens, 6 for 68.
Middlesex, 1st innings 336
Northants, 2nd innings (for 7 wickets) 187

GLAMORGAN v. LANCES.

MERCER BOWLS WELL.

At Cardiff, Lancashire beat Glamorgan on the first innings. Glamorgan batted first when they totalled 109 and despite the fact that Mercer took 6 wickets for 59 runs, Lancashire hit up 192 in reply. The scores were:—Glamorgan, 1st innings 109
Mercer, 6 for 59.
Lancashire, 1st innings (total for 6 wickets) 192

OXFORD v. GLOUCESTER.

At Oxford, the University played a drawn game with Gloucestershire. (Continued on next column.)

Oxford, 1st innings 139
Gloucester, 2nd innings 330
Oxford, 2nd innings (for 0 wickets) 28

V.R.C. SWIMMING.

OPENING GALA HELD ON SATURDAY.

ABSENCE OF GOOD CLASS COMPETITORS.

The first night fete of the season held at the V.R.C. did not prove to be a very good drawing card and there was a comparatively small attendance when the sport commenced shortly after 9.15 p.m. The dance which followed the aquatic events, however, proved extremely popular and many people took the floor to the excellent music supplied by the Brunswick Dance Orchestra.

Of the sport itself, the idea of classification of the competitors was a happy one and there was a distinct improvement in all races. The programme, however, comprised events confined to members only and naturally enough, public interest was lacking. When some open events, ladies or team races open to various clubs are included in the programme, the programme will become more interesting.

Speaking of the sport generally, it was gratifying to see L. Roza Pereira in such good fettle. He swam the 100 yards against two other competitors and although he did not win, he did the distance in 51.3 seconds which is pretty good going. McGrann who won this race had a concession of six seconds from Pereira and did quite well to win by a yard. H.M. Remedios, with only a second's handicap from Pereira remained in front of the latter for three lengths, but in the last lap he faded out of the picture.

The members' team race drew five teams of seven competitors a side and here some good swimming was seen. The winning team was captained by A. McGrann and it had all its work cut out to win. The diving competition was interesting and in spite of the handicap, honours went to Ed da Rosa, who was last year's diving champion. L.A. Roza took second place.

Water Polo.

The water polo match at the conclusion of the programme was productive of some good play and the Services put up a surprisingly good performance in the first half to stand at one goal all at the interval. In the second half, the home team stayed very much better and scored four times without reply from the Services. The V.R.C. team did not seem to combine well in the opening stages of the game and J.R. Soares did not appear to play his usual sound defensive game. Zimmerman on the other hand was very dependable at back and more than once prevented what must have been a goal had the opposing forward wriggled free of Zimmerman. The Pereira brothers played well, but McGrann did not seem to combine well with them. C. Roza Pereira scored four of the five V.R.C. goals, while McGrann scored one.

The Results.

50 Yards Boys Handicap: 1 A.A. Rumjahn 31 seconds, 2 H. Gutierrez 32.4 seconds.
50 Yards Members "D" Class Handicap: 1 C. Santos, 32 seconds, 2 C. Victor, 32.4 seconds.
100 Yards Members "B" Class Handicap: 1 L.A. Soares, 72.3 seconds, 2 A.A. Gutierrez 79.3 seconds.
50 Yards Members "C" Class Handicap: 1 E.A. Remedios 35 seconds, 2 G.A. Pina, 33.4 seconds.
100 Yards Members "A" Class Handicap: 1 A. McGrann, 67.2 seconds, 2 L. Roza Pereira 61.5 seconds.
Diving (Sealed Handicap): 1 Ed da Rosa, 2 L.A. Roza.
Members' Team Race: 1 A. McGrann's team, 3 minutes 49.3 seconds, 2 H.M. Remedios' team, 3 minutes 52.4 seconds.
Water Polo: V.R.C. 5, United Services 1. The teams were as follows:—
V.R.C.: T.L. Knight, J.R. Soares, E. Zimmerman, H.M. Remedios, C.E. Roza Pereira, L. Roza Pereira, A. McGrann.
Services: A.B. Mitchell (H.M.S. Orpheus), Cpl. Coleman (S.W.B.), Ld. S. Walker (H.M.S. Cornwall), A.B. Donovan (H.M.S. Orpheus), Pte. Sutherland (S.W.B.), Pte. Campbell (S.W.B.), A.B. Slade (H.M.S. Cornwall).

LOCAL BASEBALL.

S. CHINA WIN OPENING GAME.

At Caroline Hill Stadium, on Saturday, the South China Athletic Club, champions of the 1931 Baseball League, were just able to nose out the American team from the U.S.S. Gold Star by one run in the ninth inning.

This marks the first game of the season and was attended by only a small crowd. The Gold Star men were all heavy hitters as most of the Navy teams are, but the Chinese smashed out a five point lead by the third inning. The sailors played a great game and after a hard fight picked up the score and came out tied in the seventh. No score was made in the eighth and the game was continued for another stanza. The Chinese garnered the last run and finished the game in good style.

Homer in the Fifth.

Levanovich, short stop for the sailors, connected a beauty and made a homer. The ball had no chance of being caught and went past the short stop and first baseman at express speed. The sailors followed this up with five runs in the seventh.

The line-up and score were as follows:—

| South China | Gold Star |

YESTERDAY'S GAME.

EASY WIN FOR S.C.A.A.

South China A.A.'s baseball team crossed bats with the Chinese Athletic yesterday afternoon at the Caroline Hill Stadium and took the game without any trouble. The score at the ninth was 13-4.

From a baseball standpoint the game was a total wash-out filled with errors and squabbles over technical points. Both teams were inclined to have better fingers but South China were decidedly the better team in the field. It was just like taking candy from a baby for the local boys although for two innings the visitors held their own. In the third inning Matty Chang's pill hitters brought in five runs through no efforts of theirs. The full string went to bats before calling "quits."

Action in the Seventh.

The game went easy for the next three innings until in the seventh the Canton boys managed to bring in a man. The locals came back with two more and then in the eighth brought in four. One point was potted by the visitors in the ninth and Matty's boys called it a day without taking last bats.

Matty Chang played his usual snappy game and saved the runner in at least in one tight pinch. H. Jan pitched a pretty game and again showed his worth as a twirler. South China's fielding was fair but not as good as it could have been.

Many of South China's runs were netted through errors and all-around bad playing. Canton's pitcher played steadily but was nothing to write home about.

Line-Up:

THE CRISIS IN THE TIN INDUSTRY.

CHINESE MINERS IN F.M.S. AND LONDON RESTRICTION SCHEME.

DANGERS OF SCUTTLE THE PLAN.

A strange situation has developed within the Malayan tin industry during the last week, says the Straits Times in an editorial on May 23. Eighty-five per cent. of the tin producers of the world have agreed to a scheme of restriction and the remaining fifteen per cent. the Chinese miners of Malaya, are holding it up. This scheme is backed by the most expert, informed, authoritative and responsible opinion that has ever been marshalled in support of any proposal put before the tin industry. The unanimity revealed in cables from London and in the meeting held in Kuala Lumpur last Saturday is simply amazing. Messrs. Mair, Glenister, Windeatt, Howeson, Hutton, Flowerdew and others well-known in Malayan tin circles are solidly supporting this scheme, and it is obvious that the gravest view of the immediate future of the tin industry is taken in London at the present moment. It is indeed an impressive army which faces the Chinese miners of Malaya, with their small properties, their sadly reduced financial resources, and their lack of contact with metropolitan opinion in Europe. Even so, the Chinese reasons for opposing the London scheme may be perfectly sound. The British, Bolivian, Dutch and Nigerian producers may have put up to them a scheme which it would be suicide for them to adopt. They know their own mines best.

F.M.S. Opinion.

However, there are the best of reasons for urging the Chinese miners of Malaya to think again very seriously before they wreck the London scheme. If they do wreck it they run the most serious risk, and not only themselves but all Malayan miners and the whole economic fabric of Malaya will be involved in that risk. The men in London who are advocating the new scheme know what is happening behind the scenes, what terrible possibilities are inherent in the metal market, far better than anyone in Malaya can do. If it were only Mr. Howeson who said that ten or twenty thousand tons of loose stocks may be unloaded by bankrupt speculators we should perhaps not be unduly disturbed. Mr. Howeson has been in disagreement with experts of equal calibre before now. But to-day Mr. Mair agrees with Mr. Howeson, and so does the Senior Warden of Mines, F.M.S., an official who is as likely to be influenced by speculative wirepulling from London as is the island of Blakan Mati. The speech made by Mr. Greig at the Kuala Lumpur meeting showed that he has clearly been forced to the conclusion that the most serious consequences may be felt in Malaya if this scheme is rejected.

It may be said that the Chinese are being asked to accept the heroic quota of twenty-five per cent. for twelve months on the basis of several unproved premises. We do not know for certain that speculators holding twenty-four thousand tons of tin will be forced to sell those stocks, we do not know that consumption in the United States will not improve, and we do not know that the price will improve if this drastic cut in production is made. All these statements are true, but on the other hand we have the best advice that the Malayan miners could hope to have on any grave issue presented to them as being strongly in favour of this scheme. All previous doubts as to the merits of restriction for the tin industry must be set aside now. When all the leading men in the industry, and the head of the F.M.S. Mines Department, are anxious about the future and desirous of seeing immediate action taken, it is foolish for others less well informed to protest.

The Chinese Standpoint.

If the Chinese, by hook or by crook, can bring their production down to twenty-five per cent. it is their plain duty to themselves, to their industry, and to Malaya to accept this scheme. If they reject it let them do so with a full realization of the risk they are taking, with minds as serious and settled as those of of taking a wider view than their Chinese-speaking compatriots, unable to follow English speeches and read English newspapers, can do. If these men after mature and anxious consideration of the facts put before them by the Senior Warden of Mines, still declare that the Chinese cannot work on a twenty-five per cent. quota, and that the risk of the bankruptcy of tin holders must be taken, there will be nothing for it but to accept and respect their attitude. If they do not modify their opposition desperate efforts may be made to meet them, but action must be taken quickly and negotiations take time, and concessions from other sections of the industry will be difficult to obtain. The outlook is black, so much so that the F.M.S. Government may be forced to override all local opposition and compel the tin producers under its control to accept what Mr. Lai Tet Lok aptly calls famine rations.

BARONET'S 19 YEARS OF SILENCE.

ROMANCE REVEALS LIFE SECRET.

WIDOWED TWO MONTHS AGO.

"Yes, I am Sir Francis Laur, once John Barrow, Bart."

With a laugh in which there was sadness, Sir Francis Barrow—"the Missing Baronet"—a man who has been lost to his friends and family for 19 years, revealed his identity to a pressman.

In 1913 Sir Francis walked out of his house—and did not return. Since that day his friends have searched for him in vain. Last year, when his son was seriously ill, an S.O.S. was broadcasted appealing to him to come forward, but there was no response.

Lady Barrow died two months ago.

His whereabouts would still have been unknown but for the fact that notice of the forthcoming marriage of "Francis Laurence John Barrow, widower, aged 69, to Edith Townshend, spinster, aged 52," was given at the Henrietta-street, Strand, register office yesterday.

In the West End hotel where he is staying the Baronet who has Come Back to Life told why he "disappeared," and of his adventures as plain Mr. Barrow.

When Father and Son Passed.

"First of all, let me make it clear that I did not disappear," he said.

"Lady Barrow, my solicitors, and bankers all knew that I was alive. Whether that information was passed on to my son and other members of the family I do not know."

"What happened was this. Twenty years ago there were domestic difficulties in the family and I decided to separate from my wife. After making over the bulk of my estate to my wife and family I left home and started a new life as plain Mr. Barrow."

"For some while I continued my work as an architect. Then the war came. I was too old to join up. I was living at Hastings at the time and joined the East Anglia recruiting commission there."

"During the war I read that my son Wilfred had been wounded and I wrote to the War Office asking where he was in hospital. The reply I received was: 'Ask his next of kin.'"

"Have I ever seen my son? Yes, on several occasions, but without his discovering my identity. "Once we passed each other in Haymarket a few years ago. I recognized him at once. Recognition seemed to dawn in my son's eyes, although he had not seen me since he was a boy of 12. He hesitated for a second and then apparently coming to the conclusion that he was mistaken hurried on."

"As plain Mr. Barrow I have watched the fortunes of my family. I have seen my children grow up and have been informed of their engagements and marriages."

"Why did I not come forward when the wireless S.O.S. was broadcast last year appealing for me to come forward because my son was ill? Because I read the following day that my wife had stated in an interview that she knew nothing about the appeal. I then knew that it could not be a matter of life and death."

"The future? I shall just carry on as plain Mr. Francis Barrow."

Reunion By Phone.

Captain Wilfred Barrow, son and heir of Sir Francis, is living with his wife and family in a Norfolk village. When told the news of his father, he said: "I have not spoken to him for nearly 20 years. Once I met him face to face in the street. I am sure it was he, but if he recognised me he gave no sign."

Later, while Mr. Barrow was being interviewed at his hotel, the telephone bell rang. The reporter was asked to answer and a voice came through:

"This is Captain Wilfred Barrow. I want to speak to Mr. Barrow."

Mr. Barrow was informed, and, showing signs of great emotion, he went to the telephone and said:

"Is that you, Wilfred? It is your father speaking after 20 years."

A dramatic pause, then:

"Well, tell me how you are my boy. Is your wife down there?"

"A meeting was arranged, and then Mr. Barrow said excitedly:

"I am glad to hear your voice again, though I hardly recognise it. Good-bye, Wilfred—and God bless you."

Sir Francis Barrow is the fourth Baronet (the baronetcy was created in 1836), and succeeded his father in 1900. The family motto is "Little Suffices."

WALK-IN RAIDS.

WANTED WOMEN'S WATCH ON BIG HOUSES.

BRAINS AND DARING.

Women crooks are causing a lot of trouble in London, and special efforts were being made by Scotland Yard to round up two women house-breakers who have recently made good hauls in West-End houses.

Both have displayed extraordinary daring. The latest effort was the robbery at Lady Illingworth's house, where a pale, dark-complexioned woman calmly visited a number of rooms, removed the jewellery and even went into the room where Lady Illingworth was in bed.

The woman entered the servants' quarters where the servants were at tea.

"Walk In" Specialists.

The two "wanted" women are specialists in the "walk in" kind of robbery. They reconnoitre a likely house, watch the entrances and, when the coast is clear, calmly walk in and ransack the rooms.

Both women are usually stylishly dressed and in a big house it is quite possible for them to move about without their being regarded with suspicion, particularly if the owner is in the habit of entertaining frequently. The raids are made at varying hours during the day.

These particular women crooks are individualists—it is not believed they are in any way connected with the gangs who make periodic raids. A few months ago a woman crook was being sought in the Home Counties because it was believed that a woman—stylishly dressed and with beautiful grey hair—was the driver of a big car which was being used by men carrying out country house raids.

"The woman who becomes a crook," said a criminologist, "often provides a greater problem for detectives than her male counterpart. She is usually of more than average intelligence, and uses her brains and lays her plans with much more care than men."

BLOW MAKES A BOY GROW.

GOLF MISHAP SEQUEL.

A once diminutive golf caddy, Bernard Haag, who, like Alice in Wonderland, finds himself growing at a fantastic rate, figures in a curious damage suit at Cleveland, Ohio.

He is suing Mr. Lowell E. Southern, a local player, for thrusting this greatness upon him.

A year ago Mr. Southern made a magnificent drive. The ball struck the 13-years-old caddy, stunning him.

When he recovered consciousness he was afflicted with growing pains. Ever since the boy has been growing phenomenally, until now, at 14, he measures 5 ft. 10 in. in height, several inches more than his 20-years-old brother.

He is still growing, and he objects violently to the process. He accuses Mr. Southern of adding, by his smashing drive, eight unwanted inches to his stature.

The caddy's doctor testified that there was no knowing to what heights his patient may tower.

According to the doctor, the golf ball injured the boy's pineal gland (in the brain), thus causing his abnormal growth.

Haag asks the jury to award him $4,000 damages.

BISHOP BANS SHORTS.

TEAM NOW PLAYING IN LONG TROUSERS.

Brest—Mgr. Du Pareq, the Bishop of Quimper (Britany), after having severely condemned dancing, dancers and jazz bands, has now forbidden the football team of St. Gervais to play football in shorts, which he describes as indecent. The team are playing in long trousers.

A priest who subscribes to the Bishop's dictum has even asked the wives of footballers who play in shorts to give their husbands burnt food until they relent.

Women and girls have been excluded from the ground, as the priest believes that football is not a sport for women to watch.

A priest near Marseilles, interpreting the Bishop's instructions as they applied to the "degrading effects of dancing," recently broke up a wedding party by putting his foot through the big drum of the band, supplying dance music for the guests.
